THE BOMB STOPS HERE

Aldermaston is Britain's nuclear bomb factory. The government is currently spending billions upgrading its facilities to build a new generation of nuclear weapons. These will be the new warheads intended for the new Trident submarines planned for Faslane on the Clyde.

The people, the parliament and the government of Scotland do not want these weapons. We don't need them and we certainly can't afford them.

This Easter marks the 50th anniversary of the 1st march to Aldermaston. On Easter Monday join thousands of others from across Britain in a colourful demonstration to surround the Aldermaston base.

Together we can tell Gordon Brown to cancel Trident and help build a future of peace and international justice.
